ABOUT YORK CIVIC TRUST

York Civic Trust, a Registered Charity, is a membership organization that celebrates the heritage of York and how it can be used to inform and shape the development of the city. The Civic Trust operates an Accredited museum - Fairfax House, Castlegate, York (the building is owned by York Conservation Trust). The Georgian townhouse, opened to the public in 1984 after a significant conservation and restoration programme undertaken by the Civic Trust. Working collaboratively with other key civic stakeholders including the University of York, City of York Council, York Museums Trust, York BID and Make-it-York the Civic Trust actively promotes, comments and informs the development of the city. Understanding the pressures on a 21st century city – traffic, the natural environment and quality of life for residents are also priorities for the Trust who co-ordinate a multi-body Transport Advisory Group to inform city-wide strategy. The Civic Trust work in partnership with the Department of Archaeology of the University of York in organizing ‘the planning club’ an opportunity for post-graduate student to gain ‘live’ experience in reviewing and providing informed comments on planning applications as they affect the whole city of York.

The Trust organizes a long-running programme of events and activities open to members and the wider public provides opportunities to gain a greater understanding of the city and its surroundings, and of conservation issues.

The organization is committed to creating opportunities for the population of York and its visitors to engage with and participate in celebrating, valuing and raising awareness of the city’s heritage in its many and diverse forms. The Civic Trust’s ongoing 150 plaque programme records significant individuals, events and places within the city.

Since 1946 the Civic Trust has undertaken to develop civic amenities for the benefit of York’s residents – this has included the foundation of the University of York, the closure of Deansgate to traffic and the restoration of the Lord Mayor’s Mansion House and Peasholme House. The Trust continues this work through the delivery of city enhancement projects both large and small.

York Civic Trust’s governing body is its Board of Trustees drawn from its membership. A small team of employees (less than 15) are supported by a strong base of over 200 volunteers and advisors.
